ABSTRACT

As the main cover suggests, this theses research is about the study of graffiti, a form of art that is also considered as vandalism; and how it can be transformed artistically as well as architecturally into a house. Hence the title. "What if the art of graffiti can be transformed into a house? – Graffiti House.

In laymen's term, Graffiti House will be considered as an ordinary house that will be fully covered by colourful graffiti. However, this is not what I would consider as a Graffiti House. My research will focus on how this form of art that is as you would expect 2-dimensional in nature, can be manipulated and transformed into a 3-dimensional building form that is a house. Therefore, it will not be as simple as it originally sounds, in view of the fact that it will involve a lot of experimentation since graffiti itself is a very dynamic and energetic form of art.
